

In many countries, the amount of crime is increasing.

What do you think are the main causes of crime? How can we deal with those crimes?

In every society injustice and misuse of power can lead to brutality, which results in change in state of mind for many with general misconduct. Mainly lack of education, poverty and undistributed power structure in the society results in increasing crimes. Better opportunities in education and employment, and judicial reforms could be the top priority solution.

Mostly in developing countries people face social injustices and inadequateness, which creates hopelessness in judicial system, therefore sufferers disjoin from the right path. Another reason which involves a great amount people committing crimes, could be the lack of formal education and unemployment. Mainly unskilled individuals suffer through poverty and lack of food, resulting their involvement in acts like theft, robbery and kidnaping. Similarly, uneducated youngsters in some Asian and African countries are being used for crimes of drugs and smuggling.

In longer term, both education of skill and morality can play vital role in decreasing the criminal activities, along with a way forward for young criminals, who are a big part of many countries. Furthermore, it's high time to change the laws of punishment to focus more on targeting mentally and psychologically so that we can deal with both spike in wrongdoings and, recovery of criminals to their normal life. In addition to this, governments should prioritize on many alternatives of employment, and encourage competition among people of different caliber.

In conclusion, to effectively reduce the crime rate, governments should develop the socio-economic condition and also reform their judicial system. Prioritizing the education of their people and effective employment circumstances will help them address this problem to a great extent.
